Devastor Lakanddra

Devastor Lakanddra, born in a slum on the planet of Corellia is a young yet experienced and battle hardened free-lance operative. His parents were killed during a vacation to Coruscant by a band of of-patrol Imperials. Devastor was 15 at the time and survived in that wretched hive of scum and villainy until he worked up enough money to get a transport of planet by an old pilot named Re'han with an old YT-1300. On their way to where ever they were to end up the fell upon a band of pirates with a corvette. During their assault on the ship Re'han took his last jump when a well-directed laser bolt hit the left laser cannon nacelle, the one he was firing from. Devastor, young and dumb-founded put to use the little knowledge that he learned on Coruscant and targeted the corvettes main power generator. Devastor raced over to the nav-computer thinking to himself Oh my god I have no idea how to work one of these! Luckily Re'han had it preprogrammed. Devastor frightened by the previous events ran to the cockpit and jumped into hyperspace before the pirate ship could turn on its back-up generators. After about 6 hours in hyperspace Devastor finally settled down. Then a white, dirty piece of paper caught his eye stuck to the "dashboard" of the ship. In the note Re'han stated his will. Re'han's ship which Devastor later named the Nova Star, a reserved docking bay and a small apartment were all on the will for Devastor. The young rebel must have made an impression on the softhearted freighter pilot. Somehow Re'han must have known that he wouldn't of made it through the raid and left all of his belongings to probably the only person to talk to him for years.

The coordinates left in the ship landed him on the planet Abbregado-rae in the territories where Devastor found an old Battle hardened Scarred Partisan General was waiting for Re'han. Devastor explained all of what happened and then after about 3 months began his training by that old man whose name Devastor found out to be Ko'lei. He was a tough on the outside yet very kind old man whom Devastor Adopted as his "father". Ko'lei trained Devastor Lakanddra how to pilot and use a blaster and all the other things a lone "ranger" should know. Ko'lei never said a word about his past or gave away any personal information. Ko'lei also was very skilled with a Katana. He taught Devastor the ways of the Katana, leading up to when Devastor forged his own Katana that he named Kla'narm or Witchblade in Ko'lei's own language. After about 4 years Devastor taught himself a unique style of martial arts, and later crafted his own light katana or a light saber with a thinner and slightly curved blade. He became very skilled in everything he put his mind to. When Devastor turned 20 Ko'lei presented him with the oracle of Nei'mehn, which Ko'lei always wore around his neck. One day shortly after this Devastor went to town to pick up a new hydrospanner. When he came back he could feel something was not right. Opening the door to Ko'lei's house he found the beat and bloodied form of Ko'lei. Swiftly walking to Ko'lei, the old man barely noticeable lifted his head at Devastor. "Devastor" Ko'lei said in a weak whisper " Today is my last in this world, you are now ready for your destiny" with that Ko'lei lowered his head and took his last breath. After that Devastor swore to find his teachers killers and have revenge. He took Ko'lei and gave him a proper burial then without saying a word took all his belongings and left the planet in search of revenge.

That same day while wandering aimlessly not knowing what do he knew what he must. Walking over to the Nav-computer of the Nova Star he typed in the coordinates for the planet he had a feeling he must go to. He didn't know why but something inside him told him he must. Some feeling that was implanted in him, some instinct, from his childhood. Searching the ships data banks he found the planet. It was a small unnamed planet called Jubilar. Landing the ship he came to find out that this planet was a smuggling hotbed. Deciding to make some credits he started hawling illegal spice and cargo. Soon after when he caught wind of a young Rebel Alliance he decided that this would be his opportunity for revenge against the empire. After meeting a contact he met General Cracken who deployed him as a Blackfiles operative. His first mission was to destroy a Imp Sub pen but morphed into the recovery of the TEA or Tactical Espionage Agents list. Which is when his life really changed when he met Vandal Laws
