Description: Vik was a clone of the bounty hunter Jango Fett who, after serving in the Clone Wars, was imprisoned in the Galactic Empire's Tantiss Base. While imprisoned there, his many days of confinement led to him losing all hope of ever being rescued, as he saw his brothers taken away to be experimented on. When members of Clone Force 99 helped to free him and the other clone troopers imprisoned there, Vik helped to extract Hunter, Wrecker, and Crosshair; taking a blaster and fighting against the brainwashed Clone X operatives. He later escaped along with Clone Force

99 and the other prisoners and joined Echo along with Emerie Karr and three other clones heading to Pantora.

Personality and traits

A genetic clone of the bounty hunter Jango Fett, Vik had black hair, brown eyes, and tan skin. Additionally, he had a beard and a small portion of his right eyebrow missing. Vik stood at a height of 1.83 meters tall.

One of the many clone prisoners trapped at Mount Tantiss base, Vik's time spent imprisoned had caused him lose all hope of anybody coming to rescue him or his brothers. Contrary to his belief, Clone Force 99 had infiltrated the base with the intention of freeing all the captives.
