Description: The Krish were sapient humanoids indigenous to the planet Sanza.

Characteristics

The Krish were smooth-skinned humanoids with large, wide heads. Their faces were dominated by bony ridges above the eyes and along the nose, and their mouths were filled with rows of tiny, pointed teeth. They often smiled when seeing any form of entertainment. They also had short, wiry hair.

Krish loved playing games of any sort, as they provided a way to focus their aggressive psychology. They were incredibly competitive, and they responded well in the face of difficult puzzles or extreme adversity. However, when faced with easier tasks, they would often intentionally make it harder for themselves. Their love of games also had a distracting effect, so they were highly unreliable when it came to business matters or other jobs they considered unexciting.

A number of Krish under the leadership of Bardron were in charge of the basic operations of the swoopdueling tournaments on Jervo's World around the time of the Mandalorian Wars.
