Special Abilities:

Economics: Muuns were extremely intelligent, and both greedy and cautious when it came to business ventures. They were lured to profitable and vulnerable economic situations or opportunities, yet took long thought before committing themselves to a business deal. Muuns' talent with money stemmed from their extremely valuable mathematical and statistical skills. Muun children were known to calculate complex mathematical formulas as quickly as most adults of other species could. This gives them a bonus +1D to Value and Bargain.

Story Factors:

Competitive: Muuns possessed a drive to compete with other races and even among themselves, which also contributed to higher rates of economic output anywhere Muuns were located.

Lawful: Muuns also had a fundamental respect for fairness and justice, however, and regarded a contract as almost a sacred trust. Muuns were known to always follow the letter of the law, though often not the spirit.

Description: A female[2] Muun was a member of the Banking Clan in the New Republic Era.[1] Around 9 ABY,[3] the individual was on an official business trip to the planet Lanupa, accommodated in[1] Skull Ridge Mountain Hotel & Spa.[4] In their spare time, the woman indulged themselves in hotel services. One day, as they took a mud bath with a white towel on their head in the company of[1] a male colleague,[2] two[1] security officers[5] came up, asking if the guests had seen Jod Na Nawood. Both of the Muuns, however, denied having seen[1] him.[6]
