Creatures D6 / Tarrasque

Tarrasque

The Tarrasque is a killing machine of unbelievable power and ferocity. Though a connection was never proven it is beleived to be related to the Dark Masters who command the Myrrddraal and Trollocs. There have been reportings of multiple tarrasque but only one has ever been positively identified. That one spread destruction across an entire sector in the Old Republic. Nobody knew how it got from world to world, but it'd show up and destroy everything it could find. It would eat anything alive, plant or animal.

A group of jedi were sent in with a Republic task force. Many of the soldiers were killed during confrontation after confrontation. The taskforce got desperate when two of the Jedi failed to kill the thing and were themselves killed. Orbital bombardments were tried but still the beats persisted. Nuclear weapons were even released to no avail.

Finaly a sacrafice was made to stop the creature from continuing to sow his unstoppable detsurction across the galaxy. Four of the Jedi, as well as five hundred crack soldiers from the Republic, held the Tarrasque in one area while one of the battle cruisers was packed with high explsoives and crashed down right on top of them. Not even a single cell survived the thermo-nuclear blast which incinerated everything for kilometers.

The taskforce went home with only 13% of their force remaining and most of the sector in ruins, however the Tarrasque was never heard from again. Several planets were quarantined for unlisted reasons when there were sightings of Tarrasque on them.
